TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF OHIOAN SPOKEN AS TOMB AT MARION IS DEDICATED; COOLIDGE SPEAKS

No Names Mentioned by President in Attack on 'Friends' Who Failed Harding But Reference to Oil Scandals Leaves Little Need of This; Coolidge Dwells on Accomplishments of Administration.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES

MARION, O., June 16.—Over the tomb of Warren G. Harding there was spoken today a courageous defense of his maligned administration, and a magnificent tribute to his memory as a man—a man "betrayed by his friends."

Here in the shadow of the beautiful Grecian memorial which Harding's loyal friends erected to him, President Hoover broke the silence of years to extol the kindly human qualities of the 29th president and to exonerate in terms of extreme bitterness those who, as he said, betrayed him.

Mr. Hoover stated no names, but his reference to the oil scandals was so plain and unmistakable that no one in the vast throng had the slightest doubt who was meant.

On the platform as an interested participant of the dedicatory exercises was Calvin Coolidge, the taciturn Vermont, who earlier in the proceedings had himself paid high tribute to the man whom he succeeded in the presidency. Mr. Coolidge, however, made no reference to "betrayals," confining himself to a survey of the really monumental legislative record of the Harding administration.

The President's allusion to those who betrayed his predecessor came near the close of his brief address and caused a profound hush to fall over the assembly.

TOLD OF TRIP
With very evident feeling, he told how he had been one of those who accompanied President Harding on the ill-fated Alaska trip that ended in his death, how he had observed him physically slipping, and growing more weary under burdens imposed upon him.

"And we came also to know," said Mr. Hoover, "that there was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weaken not only from physical exhaustion but from mental anxiety."

"Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends."

"It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their staunch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country."

"That was the tragedy in the life of Warren Harding."

Then, with great deliberation and intense feeling, Mr. Hoover proceeded to blister with burning words those who prove false to a public trust.

"There are," he continued, "disloyalties and there are crimes which shock our sensibilities which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their immediate results. But there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weaknesses which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust."

"Monetary loss or even the shock to moral sensibilities is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone."

It was a speech such as the loyal Marion home-folk have long waited to hear, and the deep hush was punctuated by a murmur of approval that rippled to the far reaches of the throng.

There were many on the platform and in the assemblage who knew and loved Warren Harding throughout a life-time in a small city, and long before even he ever dreamed of the White House. The years that followed his death were tragic years to them as investigation and litigation unrolled unsavory episodes at Washington. And to these men, loyal friends and neighbors and cronies, the reassurance

OHIO'S INCOME TAX PROPOSAL MEETS DEFEAT

House Votes Down Taxation Committee's Plan by 39-69 Vote

EXCISE BILL LOSES

Inheritance Plan to Assist Schools

COLUMBUS, O., June 16.—The income tax measure has met its "Waterloo," it appeared today.

By a vote of 39 to 69, the state house of representatives last night defeated the special joint taxation committee's proposal for an income tax on net earned incomes.

The measure went down after a vigorous two-hour debate, during which supporters of the plan contended that it was the only one in the taxation program that actually granted substantial relief to the tax burden now resting on real estate.

COMPANION BILL
The income tax was also described as a necessary companion measure to the intangible tax bill which passed the legislature last week, in order to insure payment of taxes by all classes of citizenship.

The victorious opposition, however, declared that inasmuch as it would have required payment of taxes by single persons whose net annual income was at least $750 and married persons with yearly incomes of not less than $1,500, it was unjust in that it placed too great a tax burden upon the poor, or "those least able to pay."

The Roberts bill, raising the annual excise tax on utilities other than railroads from 1.35 to four per cent a year, lost a hard fought battle in the house last night when a motion by Rep. James A. Glenn (R) of Coshocton, to relieve the house taxation committee of the bill and to send it to the house finance committee failed to pass. The (Continued on Page Five.)

Caught After Robbery Ohio Bank

SUSPECTS

Sheriff Sol Edgerton and Deputy Sheriff Joe Ferguson and Otto Eveland of Circleville, left Tuesday for Georgetown where the latter will attempt to identify two bandits held there. It is thought in Hocking-co that the trip might lead to the solution of the murder of Walter Pleukharp.

Possibility that a trio of bank robbers arrested on the Ohio river by a posse after a daring holdup and escape at Higginsport, Monday afternoon, are the notorious Bowman brothers, wanted in Hocking-co for the murder of Walter M. Pleukharp, was expressed in official circles Tuesday and an investigation was expected to take place once with Hocking-co authorities taking action. Although the holding co sheriff's office could not reach Tuesday, neither South Hockingville nor here that Otto Edgerton, village, will be taken to town, Brown-co, to attempt to identify two of the three held there. Eveland was in Pleukharp store at the time bandit's gun during a holdup.

PICTURES IDENTIFIED

Eveland identified pictures of the Hocking-co sheriff's office, the Bowmans, wanted in southern and central Ohio for holdups and bank robberies for the past two years.

The three men were captured after they made a desperate attempt to escape a posse by crossing the Ohio river in a boat at Olathe, Ohio.

Two of the trio gave their names as Howard Bowman, 26, and C. Bowman, 22, his brother. The third said he was Lyle Cornell, of Texas. The Bowmans denied any connection with the notorious Bowman gang.

John E. Neu, of Brown-co, said possible the men are the same as ever.

The trio was captured after the Higginsport holdup and held up and robbed of about $10,000. The loot was recovered with the apprehension of the three men by police.

"SHOT UP" TOWN
The holdup of the Higginsport bank was staged in "wild west" fashion with the bandits virtually "shooting up the town." One man, Louis Schneck of Higginsport, was wounded in the gunplay. He was shot in the right leg.

Only two persons were in the bank when the bandits boldly raided the institution. They were C. E. Williams, cashier, and Miss Mary Waterfield, a clerk. Both were forced into a teller's cage while the bandits scooped up all available cash.

President Offers No Apologies Before Indianians

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 16.—President Hoover inaugurated his invasion of the middle west today—an invasion which is generally believed to herald his candidacy for 1932—with a definite challenge to progressives of his own party and the Democrats who jointly will control the new congress.

In his speech in Indianapolis, in which he outlined an economic philosophy that must be incorporated in the next Republican platform if he is to be the nominee, he made it clear that he stands on the record of his administration in dealing with the economic depression during the past year. He made no apologies and no excuses, and he challenged his opponents to experiment legislatively with other means than his of meeting economic problems.

OPPOSES "DOLE"

Declaring that he was against anything approaching a federal "dole" to meet unemployment, against any tinkering with the tariff, any extension of federal financing to meeting the business crisis, he took the position that the less governmental interference with natural economic laws at this time the better.

On tariff reform and the issue of power control particularly did he challenge his critics. "Shall we," he said, "undertake federal ownership and operation of public utilities instead of the rigorous regulation of them to prevent imposition? Shall we protect our people through the tariff from the lower standards of living in foreign countries? Shall the government enter into business processes in competition with its citizens? Shall we establish a dole from the federal treasury?"

He answered a vigorous "no" to all these interrogatories, and then asserted that his administration had bent its endeavors toward helping people to help themselves "by inspiring cooperation in the community to sustain good will and keep our country free of disorder and conflict."

"These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with the great economic crisis the world has ever known," he said. "I shall adhere to them."

BUSINESS DEPRESSION

As for the business depression itself, Mr. Hoover ventured the opinion that it was passing but he ventured no opinion as to when it will definitely be ended and normal times again at hand. The greatest need in the country today, he asserted, was more confidence in the inherent strength of American institutions and the future of the country.

"It is rather," he said, "a question of frozen confidence than of frozen assets."

MEETS LEADERS

It was a partisan audience that heard Mr. Hoover deliver the maiden speech of his four day tour of the middle west. It consisted of the Republican editors of Indiana and their friends under the auspices of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association.

Given such an audience and such a speech, there were few doubters that Mr. Hoover was throwing his hat into the 1932 ring. He praised Hoosier hospitality which was lavished upon him at every hand, and individually singled out each Republican senator and congressman from the state by name for praise—something that Mr. Hoover rarely has done in his political career.

Today he goes to Marion, Ohio where he will make the long deferred dedication of the memorial erected to Warren G. Harding, and later review a parade of the G. A. R. at Columbus, before proceeding to Illinois on his tour. Senator Watson, Gov. Leslie and others Indiana notables will accompany him to Ohio.

BULLETIN

Sheriff Sol Ellinger and Deputy Sheriff Joe Farbeam and Otis Eveland of South Bloomingville, left Tuesday for Georgetown where the latter will attempt to identify two bandits held there. It is thought in Hocking-co that the trip might lead to the solution of the murder of Walter Pleukharp.

Possibility that a trio of bank robbers arrested on the Ohio river by a posse after a daring bank holdup and escape at Higginsport, Brown-co, Monday afternoon, are the notorious Bowman brothers, wanted in Hocking-co for the murder of Walter M. Pleukharp, well-known South Bloomingville merchant, was expressed in official circles Tuesday and an investigation was expected to take place at once with Hocking-co authorities taking action. Although the Hocking-co sheriff's office could not be reached Tuesday, residents of the South Bloomingville vicinity believe that Otis Eveland, of that village, will be taken to Georgetown, Brown-co seat, to attempt to identify two of the three men held there. Eveland was in the Pleukharp store at the time the merchant was fatally shot by a bandit's gun during a holdup.

PICTURES IDENTIFIED

Eveland identified pictures in the Hocking-co sheriff's office as the Bowmans, wanted in various southern and central Ohio cities for holdups and bank robberies in the past two years.

The three men were captured as they made a desperate attempt to escape a posse by crossing the Ohio river in a boat at Camp Ohio.

Two of the trio gave their names as Howard Bowman, 26, and Neil G. Bowman, 22, his brother. The third said he was Lyle Cornell, 23, of Texas. The Bowmans gave their home as Portland, O., but denied any connection with the notorious Bowman gang. Sheriff John E. Neu, of Brown-co, said it possible the men are the same, however.

The trio was captured shortly after the Higginsport bank was held up and robbed of about $6,000. The loot was recovered with the apprehension of the three men, police said.

"SHOT UP" TOWN
The holdup of the Higginsport bank was staged in "wild west" fashion with the bandits virtually "shooting up the town." One man, Louis Schneek of Higginsport, was wounded in the gunplay. He was shot in the right leg.

Only two persons were in the bank when the bandits boldly raided the institution. They were C. B. Williams, cashier, and Miss Mary Waterfield, a clerk. Both were forced into a teller's cage while the bandits scooped up all available cash.

Leaving a trail of gunfire behind them, the bandits fled. In their

President Offers No Apologies Before Indianians

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 16.—President Hoover inaugurated his invasion of the middle west today—an invasion which is generally believed to herald his candidacy for 1932—with a definite challenge to progressives of his own party and the Democrats who jointly will control the new congress.

In his speech in Indianapolis, in which he outlined an economic philosophy that must be incorporated in the next Republican platform if he is to be the nominee, he made it clear that he stands on the record of his administration in dealing with the economic depression during the past year. He made no apologies and no excuses, and he challenged his opponents to experiment legislatively with other means than his of meeting economic problems.

Declaring that he was against anything approaching a federal "dole" to meet unemployment, against any tinkering with the tariff, any extension of federal financing to meeting the business crisis, he took the position that the less governmental interference with natural economic laws at this time the better.

On tariff reform and the issue of power control particularly did he challenge his critics.

"Shall we," he said, "undertake federal ownership and operation of public utilities instead of the rigorous regulation of them to prevent imposition? Shall we protect our people (through the tariff) from the lower standards of living in foreign countries? Shall the government-enter into business processes in competition with its citizens? Shall we establish a dole from the federal treasury?"

He answered a vigorous "no" to all these interrogatories, and then asserted that his administration had bent its endeavors toward helping people to help themselves, "by inspiring cooperation in the community to sustain good will and keep our country free of disorder and conflict."

"These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with the great economic crisis the world has ever known," he said, "I shall adhere to them."

As for the business depression itself, Mr. Hoover ventured the opinion that it was passing, but he ventured no opinion as to when it will definitely be ended and normal times again at hand. The greatest need in the country today, he asserted, was more confidence in the inherent strength of American institutions and the future of the country.

"It is rather," he said, "a question of frozen confidence than of frozen assets."

It was a partisan audience that heard Mr. Hoover deliver the maiden speech of his four day tour of the middle west. It consisted of the Republican editors of Indiana and their friends, under the auspices of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association.

Given such an audience and such a speech, there were few doubters that Mr. Hoover was throwing his hat into the 1932 ring. He praised Hoosier hospitality, which was lavished upon him at every hand, and individually singled out each Republican senator and congressman from the state by name for praise—something that Mr. Hoover rarely has done in his political career.

MEETS LEADERS

Since leaving Washington, he has had conferences with the Republican leader of three states—West Virginia, Ohio, and Indiana. He spent last night as the guest of Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana, at the executive mansion, to which most of the Republican leaders of the state were invited during the evening.

Today he goes to Marion, Ohio, where he will make the long deferred dedication of the memorial erected to Warren G. Harding, and later review a parade of the G. A. R. at Columbus, before proceeding to Illinois on his tour. Senator Watson, Gov. Leslie and others Indiana notables will accompany him to Ohio.

TEXT OF HOOVER'S SPEECH AT MARION

MARION, O., June 16 — "We are assembled here to dedicate the tomb of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States. This beautiful monument, erected by the voluntary subscriptions of the people, symbolizes their respect for his memory. It has been their response with tender remembrance to a kindly and gentle spirit. As future years come and go each of them will be marked by gatherings here of his friends and the people of a grateful democracy, for democracy has ever paid respect and tribute to those who have given her service.

"Warren G. Harding came from the people. Born just at the close of the Civil War, it became his responsibility to lead the republic in a period of reconstruction from another great war in which our democracy had again demonstrated its unalterable resolve to withstand encroachment upon its independence and to deserve the respect of the world.

"Great as are the problems of the conflict the burdens of statesmanship are equally great in the rehabilitation of social and economic life after the destruction of war. Above all, the burden is heavy in composing the dates and prejudices which smolder and threaten long after the formal documents of peace are signed.

"As the aftermath of war our national finances were disorganized, taxes were overwhelming, agriculture and business were prostrate, and unemployment widespread. Our country was torn with injustices to those racial groups of our own citizens descended from the enemy nations. Violent bitterness had arisen over the treaty of Versailles.

"These evil spirits, aroused by war, augmented by inestimable losses, deep animosities, the dislocations of industry, the vast unemployment in a world still armed and armed confronted Warren G. Harding. He brought to the office of president, a long experience in public affairs together with the character and spirit of which the republic was then in need. His was a mind and character fitted for a task where the one transcendent need was the healing quality of gentleness and friendliness. It was his mission to compose the prejudices and conflicts at home, to lessen the threats of renewed wars through the world, he succeeded in those tasks. When in two years he died, new peace treaties had been made in terms which won the support of our people; tranquility had been restored at home; employment had been renewed, and a long period of prosperity had begun.

"And he succeeded further. The Washington arms conference for the reduction and limitation of battleships identified his administration with the first step in history toward the disarmament of the world. That step was accompanied by the momentous treaties which restored good will among the nations bordering upon the Pacific Ocean and gave to all the world inestimable blessings of peace and security.

"The new and changing problems of later years have not obscured the many other constructive acts of his administration. The reorganization and reduction of the public debt, the reduction in taxation, the creation of the budget system, the better organization of industry and employment, new services to agriculture, the establishment of a permanent system of care for disabled veterans and their dependents—are but some of the enlightened measures which he inspired and advanced.

"But this is neither the time nor place in historic retrospect to catalogue his many services to our country. They will be recorded and gratefully remembered by his countrymen.

"Our thoughts today turn to the man himself. My first meeting with Warren Harding ever lingers in my memory. It was during the war and in a time of the greatest strain and anxiety. Late one evening the then Senator Harding, whom I had never met, came to my office. When he was announced there flashed into my mind the thought that here was some complaint or a request for some appointment. Instead the senator said simply: "I have not come to get anything. I just want you to know that if you wish the help of a friend, telephone me what you want. I am there to serve and to help." That statement, I came to learn, was typical of him. I refer to it now because it reveals the nature of the man.

"It was of those who accompanied the late president on his fateful trip across the continent and to Alaska. He had wished to learn from the people their needs and to translate to them his own aspirations. Those who were his companions on that journey realized full well that he had overstrained even his robust strength in the gigantic task which confronted him during the previous two years. And we came also to know that there was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weaken not only from physical exhaustion but from mental anguish. Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends. It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their staunch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country. That was the tragedy of the life of Warren Harding.

"There are disloyalties and there are crimes which shock our sensibilities, which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their immediate results. But there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weakness which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust. Monetary loss or even the shock to moral sensibilities is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of the standards of honor, the fall in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never come.

"Warren Harding gave his life in worthy accomplishment for his country. He was a man of delicate sense of honor, of sympathetic heart, of transcendent gentleness of soul—who reached out for friendship, who gave of it loyally and generously in his every thought and deed. He was a man of passionate patriotism. He was a man of deep religious feeling. He was devoted to his fellow men. No revelation of his character can equal that of his own words just before his death. They were a part of his last public statement. I quote:

"We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions, and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration and reverence of God. I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. We do rise to heights at times when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together, and when envy and suspicion are vanquished, fraternity records a triumph and brotherhood brings new blessings to men and to people. Christ was the prince of peace, and we who seek to render his name glorious must move in the ways of peace and brotherhood and loving service."

"He gave his life in that spirit, and in that spirit we pay tribute to his memory."

TEXT OF WHITE'S SPEECH AT MARION

MARION, O., June 16.—In his address accepting the Harding Memorial Tomb for the state of Ohio today Governor George White said:

"Mr. President, Mr. Chairman, Fellow Citizens:

"Gratefully, Mr. President, the state of Ohio accepts this beautiful memorial erected to do honor to one of her native sons, and to serve as the permanent sarcophagus for him and his devoted companion.

"On behalf of the people of Ohio I desire to express our gratitude to those from every state who voluntarily so generously helped make possible for the bringing to completion of this most laudable expression of honor and respect. Our thanks are due the members and the executive committee of the Harding Memorial association, who have so patriotically devoted themselves to the difficult tasks of administration and accomplishment in connection with this memorial which we dedicate here today.

"The people of Ohio appreciate deeply the presence on this occasion of the President of the United States. We are grateful for the presence of a very recent former President of the United States, each here to honor one of Ohio's illustrious dead.

"We apprehend that they, too, realize as they look upon these tombs, holding all that is mortal of a devoted husband and wife, that here, then, is the end of life's journey when all descend alike to common clay. When the vanities of pomp and circumstance no longer flatter the senses, when power and the obedience thereto no longer hold sway to thrill the heart and soul, but when, by dictate of Almighty God their mortal bodies shall have succumbed to mere ashes and dust, and be laid away among their friends and neighbors, the value of their services ultimately to be judged by posterity in the years to come.

"Grateful as we are that this magnificent Memorial has been erected to do him honor throughout the ages to come, Ohio needs not these expansive terraces and this stately pile of marble to keep her reminded of the life and achievements of Warren G. Harding. His unfailing spirit of human kindness and friendliness, his steadfastness of purpose, his honesty and clarity of thought and expression, his sterling personal integrity—all of these qualities have graven themselves upon the hearts of us, his friends and neighbors here in Ohio, more impressively than they may be carved in cold marble or molded in bronze.

"And if, instead of resting in this noble structure, as they so fittingly do, his remains were laid to rest in a simple grave upon one of Ohio's isolated hillsides which he loved so well, that simple grave would have become a shrine and a mecca for countless thousands of Americans because of the manner of man who lay therein.

"The life and career of Warren G. Harding stands out as a beacon of light, not only in the annals of America but in the history of the world. No where save in a Democracy such as ours could such achievement be possible. From a barefoot boy in poverty-stricken circumstances roaming the hills of Morrow-co, through steadfastness of purpose, and with an eye single to doing his duty as he saw it, and with the confidence and trust of countless friends, he successfully became legislator for his state, lieutenant governor of his state, United States Senator, and finally, President of the United States.

"Cynics attempt to tell us more and more insistently that the door to opportunity is closed to the youth of America—that there is no longer such a thing as advancement for achievement, that reward through sheer merit and personality is but an idle dream. I know of no better way of refuting these bombasts of the cynic than by pointing to the life story of Warren G. Harding. His career stands out as a lesson to the youth of all America that opportunity still beckons, that there is reward for industriousness, compensation for integrity and steadfastness of purpose, and glory in achievement.

"In paying tribute as we do today to this beloved son of Ohio, let us not forget the very large need of praise rightfully due that wonderful woman who here lies by his side—a fitting companion in death, even as in life, Florence Kling Harding, whose loving devotion and untiring energy played such an outstanding part in the shaping of the life and career of her distinguished husband.

"To her there is due credit for assistance in initial education, tenacious steadfastness of purpose and constant adherence to principle, wise and helpful counsel lovingly given. Her lot it was to share in the earlier trials and tribulations; to share also in the glories of final accomplishment; and then, at the end, to be at his side when passing through the valley of the shadow.

"Yes, my friends, the life of service of Florence Kling Harding stands out as a shining example of what may be accomplished through the loving devotion of American womanhood.

"As we dedicate this date this stately edifice to stand while time endures as a memorial to the life and achievements of Warren G. Harding and his beloved companion, let us, my fellow citizens, as we look back upon their lives given to the service of our state and nation, dedicate ourselves anew to the cause of Democracy founded upon the principles of liberty and equality which shall endure forever."

"Grateful as we are that this magnificent Memorial has been erected to do him honor through the ages to come, Ohio needs not these expansive terraces and this stately pile of marble to keep her reminded of the life and achievements of Warren G. Harding. His unfailing spirit of human kindness and friendliness, his steadfastness of purpose, his honesty and clarity of thought and expression, his sterling personal integrity—all of these qualities have graven themselves upon the hearts of us, his friends and neighbors here in Ohio, more impressively than they may be carved in cold marble or molded in bronze.

"And if, instead of resting in this noble structure, as they so fittingly do, his remains were laid to rest in a simple grave upon one of Ohio's isolated hillsides which he loved so well, that simple grave would have become a shrine and a mecca for countless thousands of Americans because of the manner of man who lay therein.

"The life and career of Warren G. Harding stands out as a beacon of light, not only in the annals of America but in the history of the world. No where save in a Democracy such as ours could such achievement be possible. From a barefoot boy in poverty-stricken circumstances roaming the hills of Morrow-co, through steadfastness of purpose, and with an eye single to doing his duty as he saw it, and with the confidence and trust of countless friends, he successfully became legislator for his state, lieutenant governor of his state, United States Senator, and finally, President of the United States.

"Cynics attempt to tell us more and more insistently that the door to opportunity is closed to the youth of America—that there is no longer such a thing as reward for achievement, that advancement through sheer merit and personality is but an idle dream. I know of no better way of refuting these bombasts of the cynic than by pointing to the life story of Warren G. Harding. His career stands out as a lesson to the youth of all America that opportunity still beckons, that there is reward for industriousness, compensation for integrity and steadfastness of purpose, and glory in achievement.

"In paying tribute as we do today to this beloved son of Ohio, let us not forget the very large need of praise rightfully due that wonderful woman who here lies by his side—a fitting companion in death, even as in life, Florence Kling Harding, whose loving devotion and untiring energy played such an outstanding part in the shaping of the life and career of her distinguished husband.

"To her there is due credit for assistance in initial education, tenacious steadfastness of purpose and constant adherence to principle, wise and helpful counsel lovingly given. Her lot it was to share in the earlier trials and tribulations; to share also in the glories of final accomplishment; and then, at the end, to be at his side when passing through the valley of the shadow.

"Yes, my friends, the life of service of Florence Kling Harding stands out as a shining example of what may be accomplished through the loving devotion of American womanhood.

"As we dedicate this date this stately edifice to stand while time endures as a memorial to the life and achievements of Warren G. Harding and his beloved companion, let us, my fellow citizens, as we look back upon their lives given to the service of our state and nation, dedicate ourselves anew to the cause of Democracy founded upon the principles of liberty and equality which shall endure forever."

20 BOMBS EXPLODE

BUENOS AIRES, June 16.—More than 20 anarchistic bombs exploded in various parts of this city shortly after midnight today. No deaths were reported and the damage was slight. The bombs were reprisals for police efforts during the past week to clean up groups of anarchists and other radicals.

FIELD DAY LISTED IN COUNTY JUNE 22

GIRL'S DEATH STILL MYSTERY

LIMA, O., June 15.—Another angle of the mystery surrounding the cruel murder of 17-year-old Thelma Woods, whose bruised, rope-bound and stone-weighted body was found at the bottom of an abandoned gravel pit near here last week, was expected to be revealed today.

Draining operations at the pool, which surrendered the body of Miss Woods, were to be completed and a search of the pit's muddy bottom was to be made to determine whether Earl Truesdale, who vanished with the girl on the night of last May 30, was also a victim of murder.

Any member of the family of I. B. Weiler, N. Pickaway-st, is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

It is not brute force but moral power that commands predominance in the world.—Haldane.

THE PARADE of THE MANIKINS

Opening day in the grand salon of one of the fashionable Parisian dressmaking shops. Dazzling lights, gorgeous draperies, gilded chairs, flashing jewels. . . Behind the miniature stage a bevy of beautiful manikins—in velvet, satin, chiffon and lace. The curtains part. One by one they emerge, pirouette, descend the steps—and before you sweeps a magnificent array of the latest fashions!

Perhaps it has never been your good fortune to witness one of these affairs. But the imaginative mind need not go to such distant places to learn what is new and charming in the world of personal adornment . . . or what is useful and modern for the home . . . or tasty and wholesome for the table.

Let the day's advertisements pass in review! For in word and picture they, like manikins, display before you the latest and best things from the realm of merchandise.

Studying the advertisements is not only very interesting, but it enables you to shop with greater assurance of getting exactly what you want — and the greatest value for your money!

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS. THEY ARE FASCINATING AND USEFUL NEWS!

Ohio and 1932
DEMOCRATS still have their heads together over the recent "social calls" made by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, upon several of Ohio's "favorite sons." They see much significance and a host of possibilities in the meetings.
James M. Cox, Democratic nominee in 1920, entertained the New York executive and sent him on his way with the assurance that he would not seek the Democratic nomination next year. One rival eliminated. Perhaps!
Governor White also had a social call from the visiting presidential aspirant. Governor White has been suggested as presidential timber, and still another possible candidate, Senator Bulkley, was present during the "social call." Miss White was Newton D. Baker, who can gather a nice block of delegates at any Democratic convention.
After such a fest of presidential material there was found to be a deluge of theories, rumors, deductions and conclusions. One of the great number, and perhaps the most plausible one, was the holding that the New York and Ohio Democrats will try to force through the convention a ticket having a New Yorker at head and an Ohioan in second place, reversing the ticket of 1920 when Mr. Cox had Governor Roosevelt as his running mate. That would mean Roosevelt with either White or Bulkley.
But there may be many a slip between a "social call" in Ohio in June, 1931, and a Democratic convention in June, 1932.

Worrying
Giant minor evils let him pray. Who fortune's favour curries—Ten die of little worries.
This truism poetically expressed by George Robert Sims was recently put in diagnostic terms by a great American physician—Worry kills more people than war—and was affirmed and reaffirmed at the American Medical Association convention a few days ago.
Heart afflictions of a dangerous or fatal sort have multiplied greatly in the last few years, and the doctors are ready to attribute it to the worries that infest the day of modern man. At their convention their speakers never wearied of reminding their audiences of the degree to which normal resistance to disease of various sorts is lessened by the increasing nervous tension characteristic of American life.
The dangers of worry were demonstrated during the stock crash when investors broke under the strain, filling the mental and medical wards and the morgues.
The significant thing to remember in this connection is that over wrought nerves make directly for general inefficiency, and not for the material success that most people seek to obtain by overwork and worry.

Rural Education Lags
THE conference of rural educators and interests called for July by the United States commissioner of education directs attention to the necessary practice of considering rural and urban education separately and the great national need for a public school system which educates the boys and girls of both the farm and city in the same classroom.
In Tom Marshall's day the country's greatest need may have been a good five-cent cigar, but at this moment it is a public school system which will not breed farm and city blocs, feuds—political and economic—between the farmer and his city cousin, and the hates jealousies and suspicions which now divide the nation because there is neither sympathy nor understanding between country and city.

The approaching discussion of rural school problems and programs is necessary because the rural school has few problems in common with those of the city school. Such a condition is to be tolerated no longer than necessary and school consolidation is rapidly making it necessary.
Sponsors of the conference hope there will come from its discussions a program which will eliminate some of the provincial bias from rural education and give some consideration to cultural as well as vocational subjects.
You cannot work safely until you think safety.

Following the crash of his plane in Joan Marbury's Florida orange groves, young and wealthy Dave Gray is content with the peaceful life on the plantation that is a contrast to his former pleasure-seeking existence. Adventure awaits him here, however. Mueller, brutal owner of the adjoining groves, is trying to force his attentions upon Joan. He robs Dave and burns his plane because Dave refuses his demands for damage to Mueller's property in landing. Joan's cousin, Sally, who lives on the plantation, is in love with Dave, but he is more attracted by the reserved Joan. When Dave's erstwhile fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson, visit him, he is aware of the antagonism among the girls. Gerry recognizes Mueller as "Snatch Cazzoni, a boot-legger. The boys leave to steal Mueller's plane to replace Dave's. They discover Mueller's liquor store. Fearing trouble Dave has Talbot return to warn the girls to stay at home. They disregard the warning. Hearing a rumour, the girls prepare for Mueller's attack. Figures loom in the darkness. Dave grapples with one. It is Joan. On impulse, they kiss.

CHAPTER XXIII
HANNAH's screams continued, while from the darkness of the floor came the sound of scrambling bodies. Joan's strong little hands pushed Dave away from her.
"Gerry, Gerry! Shame!" That was Talbot's irrepressible voice. His laughter rocked the entire room.
Joan slipped out of Dave's hands and merged into the back of blackness as though she had never been there.
"Miss Joan," moaned Hannah's voice. "Git this man away from me."
Talbot bent over, fumbled around and hauled Gerry to his feet.
"That was Hannah, you fool, not Mueller," he laughed.
The outline of Gerry's figure slipped away in the darkness.
"Talbot, is that you?" It was Sally's voice, thin-edged with terror. Talbot moved quickly toward her.
At Swords' Points
"What are you girls doing here?" demanded Dave, trying to keep his voice from shaking. The fragrance of jasmine had disappeared. There was only the stink of gunpowder, the dank smell of a dirty house and an overpowering scent of cheap perfume.
"Hannah!" The negro was still whispering as she got heavily to her feet.
"We were just bored, Davey," came Barbara's silky voice.
"M. Marbury simply couldn't resist another minute without seeing you."
"It was you who suggested coming," said Sally, indignantly.
"Purely out of sympathy for your charming cousin," retorted Barbara.
Your sympathy, Miss Holworthy," said Joan out of the back of her head as apparent as your good breeding."
"Ladies, ladies," protested Talbot, cheerfully, "no slapping in cinemas."
"Miss Joan, please," begged Hannah, unhappily, "let's us-all go away from here. I don't like this place, Lawd no!"
"How did you all get here?" asked Dave, trying to ease the tension. "Did you walk?"

"No," replied Barbara. "We came in Miss Marbury's quaint little car."
"My eye!" muttered Talbot. "What a place for a convention! If you ladies would care to sit down and wait, I'll totter over to the other house and bring back a bottle of choice liquor. Then we could all rally around and tell ghost stories."
Too Willing
"I'll go," announced Gerry's subdued voice from the darkness. "You stay here!" commanded Dave. "You've caused enough trouble for one night."
"Effien I'd of had my carvin' knife," said Hannah, waspishly. "I'd of cut dot triflin' man's neck f'om ear to ear!"
"From where I stand, it seems like a good idea," offered Talbot, unkindly. "Could you do anything with a gold penknife?"
"Talbot," said Dave, "didn't I tell you to ask the girls to stay at home? Come over here where I can get my two hands on you!"
Talbot's footsteps could be heard moving away.
Something cold and hard was pressed against his hand. His fingers closed around the corrugated butt of Joan's automatic. He wished he could see her face in the dark. Reaching out with his other hand he captured her warm, slender hand. Her fingers lay passive in his grip.
A strong sense of unreality swept over him. His pulses were pounding from this momentary contact with a girl who was almost a stranger, while somewhere close by in the all-obliterating blackness was Barbara, whom he had known all his life and whom he had never, until a few days ago, doubted that he would marry. The habits of years are not easy to break. He felt almost guilty, standing there with Joan's unresisting hand in his, while Barbara was but a dozen feet away. Somehow he was glad that it was dark and that he could not see Barbara's eyes upon him.
Somewhere there, too, was Sally, who, but an hour or two ago, had been almost in his arms. Out there on the porch of the old plantation house she had seemed, for a few soul-stirring moments, more beautiful, infinitely more desirable, than any girl he had ever known.
Courageous Heart
It had been that wraith-like vision of Joan that had saved him from sweeping her cousin into his arms. And now Joan, who was bravely doing the best she knew how, was passing her hand to rest in his, allowing her hand to rest in his. It seemed absurd that her small, slender hand should ever have closed around a fistful of ugly blued steel. Such a weapon was for men to use in time of war. And this was America, not France.
A few dozen miles away there were officers of the law, whose duty it was to save women from the necessity of carrying and using such weapons. But a few dozen yards away there were lawless, violent men, whose voices he could even now hear echoing through the empty rooms.

Theaters
AT THE GRAND
The first of the Country Store nights will be held at the Grand Theater Wednesday, and will be sponsored by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.
At the first Country store twenty-four baskets of groceries will be given away to patrons and each basket will contain a sack of flour, box of corn flakes, salt, crackers, loaf of bread, can of corn, and of peas, oats, beans and fresh radishes.
Mr. Baughman expects a large crowd at this first country store night, and the theater will continue this novel idea every Wednesday, being sponsored by a Circleville concern each week.
AT THE GRAND
Brought to the theater going public by Radio Pictures, Edna Ferber's epic "Cimarron," at the Grand theater, is even more powerful than the great story, read by millions in America.
"Cimarron," the picture, is all that is gripping in "Cimarron," the story.
Richard Dix as Yancey Cravat seems to have walked right out of the pages of the book. Lon Yountis will never be really slain until you see Dix do it, in the most poignant scene of talking picture history, the Osage gambling tent sermon episode.
AT THE CLIFTONA
"Men Call It Love," which will open Wednesday at the Cliftona Theater, is a Metro-Goldwyn Mayer pictureization of the Vincent Lawrence stage hit of 1929, "Among the Married."
Adolphe Menjou is featured as the golf champion Don Juan who seems to take life and his fun as he finds it.
The picture is regarded as ideal material for the suave and debonaire Meju and for the excellent cast with which he is surrounded in the picture version of the daring farce of marital mishaps.

WOOSTER CLASSIC SET FOR JUNE 30
To obtain tested information on soil liming, fertilizers, crop varieties, rotations, and cultural practices, thousands of Ohio farmers are planning to attend Wheat and Clover Day at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, June 30, according to E. E. Barnes, agronomist at the state experiment station.
When visitors arrive at Wooster on June 30, he says, specialists from the Ohio State University and the experiment station will discuss the results of a year's tests on scores of important farm problems.
Among the experiments that will be explained to visitors at this farm classic are those dealing with lime. Here, the results obtained with different kinds of lime, different rates of application, and the effect of applying lime at different times in the rotation, will all be discussed in detail.
The fertilizer plots also will be visited so that visitors will have an opportunity to see the effect of different kinds and amounts of fertilizers applied to crops in rotation.
There is one chance in three hundred that a misue will cause injury, but don't forget that the "long-shot" goes over occasionally.
Also make the other fellow safety-minded. A Dayton girl suffered a cracked rib when an amorous co-laborer of the masculine persuasion gave her an uninvited hug.

Ohio and 1932

DEMOCRATS still have their heads together over the recent "social calls" made by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, upon several of Ohio's "favorite sons." They see much significance and a host of possibilities in the meetings.

James M. Cox, Democratic nominee in 1920, entertained the New York executive and sent him on his way with the assurance that he would not seek the Democratic nomination next year. One rival eliminated. Perhaps!

Governor White also had a social call from the visiting presidential aspirant. Governor White has been suggested as presidential timber, and still another possible candidate, Senator Bulkley, was present during the "social call." Missing was Newton D. Baker, who can garner a nice block of delegates at any Democratic convention.

After such a fest of presidential material there was found to be a deluge of theories, rumors, deductions and conclusions. One of the great number, and perhaps the most plausible one, was the holding that the New York and Ohio Democrats will try to force through the convention a ticket having a New Yorker at its head and an Ohioan in second place, reversing the ticket of 1920 when Mr. Cox had Governor Roosevelt as his running mate. That would mean Roosevelt with either White or Bulkley.

But there may be many a slip between a "social call" in Ohio in June, 1931, and a Democratic convention in June, 1932.

Worrying

Against minor evils let him pray, Who fortune's favour curries,— For one that big misfortunes slay, Ten die of little worries.

This truism poetically expressed by George Robert Sims was recently put in diagnostic terms by a great American physician—Worry kills more people than war—and was affirmed and reaffirmed at the American Medical Association convention a few days ago.

Heart afflictions of a dangerous or fatal sort have multiplied greatly in the last few years, and the doctors are ready to attribute it to the worries that infest the day of modern man. At their convention their speakers never wearied of reminding their audiences of the degree to which normal resistance to disease of various sorts is lessened by the increasing nervous tension characteristic of American life.

The dangers of worry were demonstrated during the stock crash when investors broke under the strain, filling the mental and medical wards and the morgues.

The significant thing to remember in this connection is that over wrought nerves make directly for general inefficiency, and not for the material success that most people seek to obtain by overwork and worry.

Rural Education Lags

THE conference of rural educators and interests called for July by the United States commissioner of education directs attention to the necessary practice of considering rural and urban education separately and the great national need for a public school system which educates the boys and girls of both the farm and city in the same classroom.

In Tom Marshall's day the country's greatest need may have been a good five-cent cigar, but at this moment it is a public school system which will not breed farm and city blocs, feuds—political and economic—between the farmer and his city cousin, and the hates, jealousies and suspicions which now divide the nation because there is neither sympathy nor understanding between country and city.

The approaching discussion of rural school problems and programs is necessary because the rural school has few problems in common with those of the city school. Such a condition is to be tolerated no longer than necessary and school consolidation is rapidly making it unnecessary.

Sponsors of the conference hope there will come from its discussions a program which will eliminate some of the provincial bias from rural education and give some consideration to cultural as well as vocational subjects.

You cannot work safely until you think safety.

"Growing Pains" Really A Rheumatic Condition

Dr. Copeland Warns Against Neglect of Child's Complaint of Pains in the Limbs, for Early Recognition May Stave Off Serious Complications

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FOR many years little was known concerning rheumatic fever. There still remains a great deal to be learned about rheumatism. The exact cause for it has not as yet been determined, nor has a definite cure been established.

This disease continues to threaten the health and lives of thousands of children. The toll of heart disease associated with this ailment is one of the great problems now confronting modern medicine.

Though many families show a tendency to this disease, it is by no means hereditary. There is no relationship between heredity and rheumatism. Nor is the disease contagious.

Enlarged and infected tonsils were believed for many years to be a causative factor of rheumatic fever. This has never been confirmed and it cannot be said that abnormal tonsils really cause rheumatic fever. There is, however, a definite relationship between diseased tonsils and rheumatic heart disease. In such cases it is advisable to have enlarged tonsils removed. They are a menace to the already diseased heart.

Recurrent tonsillitis, with enlarged tonsils, should cause the victim to talk with the family doctor. He may decide that the tonsils are a hindrance to the general health.

I want every mother to realize the importance and significance of rheumatic fever. Our hope in saving the afflicted children lies in the early recognition of this disease. When rheumatic fever is caught in its first stage, many of its serious complications can be avoided.

Such early signs as pains in the limbs, fever and fatigue, must not be overlooked. Please remember that there is no such thing as harmless "growing pains." If the tonsils are infected, have a careful examination made of the heart. Trouble here is more serious than in the joints and muscles.

If your child is pale, tires easily, has a poor appetite and runs a slight fever at night, take him to your family physician. Constant sore throats and colds may mean infected tonsils. If your physician advises their removal, do not hesitate to do as he says.

AT THE GRAND

The first of the Country Store nights will be held at the Grand Theater Wednesday, and will be sponsored by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

At the first Country store twenty-four baskets of groceries will be given away to patrons and each basket will contain a sack of flour, box of corn flakes, salt, crackers, loaf of bread, can of corn, and of peas, oats, beans and fresh radishes.

Mr. Baughman expects a large crowd at this first country store night, and the theater will continue this novel idea every Wednesday, being sponsored by a Circleville concern each week.

AT THE GRAND

Brought to the theater going public by Radio Pictures, Edna Ferber's epic "Cimarron," at the Grand theater, is even more powerful than the great story, read by millions in America.

"Cimarron," the picture, is all that is gripping in "Cimarron," the story.

Richard Dix as Yancey Cravat seems to have walked right out of the pages of the book. Lon Yountis will never be really slain until you see Dix do it, in the most poignant scene of talking picture history, the Osage gambling tent sermon episode.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Men Call It Love," which will open Wednesday at the Cliftona Theater, is a Metro-Goldwyn Mayer picturization of the Vincent Lawrence stage hit of 1929, "Among the Married."

Adolphe Menjou is featured as the golf champion Don Juan who seems to take life and his fun as he finds it.

The picture is regarded as ideal material for the suave and debonair Menjou and for the excellent cast with which he is surrounded in the picture version of the daring farce of marital mishaps.

WOOSTER CLASSIC SET FOR JUNE 30

To obtain tested information on soil liming, fertilizers, crop varieties, rotations, and cultural practices, thousands of Ohio farmers are planning to attend Wheat and Clover Day at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, June 30, according to E. E. Barnes, agronomist at the state experiment station.

When visitors arrive at Wooster on June 30, he says, specialists from the Ohio State University and the experiment station will discuss the results of a year's tests on scores of important farm problems.

Among the experiments that will be explained to visitors at this farm classic are those dealing with lime. Here, the results obtained with different kinds of lime, different rates of application, and the effect of applying lime at different times in the rotation, will all be discussed in detail.

The fertilizer plots also will be visited so that visitors will have an opportunity to see the effect of different kinds and amounts of fertilizers applied to crops in rotation.

Also make the other fellow safety-minded. A Dayton girl suffered a cracked rib when an amorous co-laborer of the masculine persuasion gave her an uninvited hug.

COMING TO THE CLIFTONA THEATRE

A magician doesn't get his tricks over to the audience by slight-of-hand alone, in fact that part of the trick is the more simple one, according to R. Temple Greystoke, one of the South's better known magicians, who is here at the Cliftona, Wednesday and Thursday.

Psychology plays the main part in all lines of "magic" and children are much harder to fool than an average adult, he stated further.

"Many of my tricks depend almost entirely upon misdirection, that is, leading the audience's thoughts down one channel and doing the trick in another.

"One must have absolute control of himself or his tricks will not go over. He must be able to 'cover up' when a trick fails and never let the audience know that anything out of the ordinary has occurred.

"Sure, a trick fails now and then, but only one out of every hundred or more in the audience ever catches on to the fact and if a magician is really an artist, no one will ever know except himself.

CORNELL SHOT

Two Higginsport citizens, Robert Cahill and Ross Seddon, who saw the bandits leaving the bank, opened fire with revolvers. One of the shots struck the man identified as Cornell.

A posse was organized and the fleeing bandits were chased to a hill between Felicity and Rural, where they were surrounded. They managed to elude the searchers, however, stealing a truck and driving madly toward the Ohio river.

The posse took up the chase again and caught up with the fugitives just as they were attempting to pull a rowboat into the river and escape into Kentucky. Threatened with gunfire, the bandits surrendered.

DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Experiments and experience bring forth new lights on old subjects, and what was looked upon as the best possible last year, is surpassed today. I will repeat years those suffering from Deafness and their often accompanying aggravating Head Noises were the least bothered about. A trumpet or a large clumsy ear phone was the only help obtainable; often resulting in complete isolation for the young, middle-aged, or old. That day is gone.

We have opened the door to new hearing by means of our newest invention: the rejuvenation of the auditory system by natural use, a method described by eminent men. A boon to mankind, combining all the Deaf have ever wanted or hoped for. You forget your Deafness, recover strain and hear all the world of sound, conversation, music, radio, talkies, etc. Equally beneficial to young or old. Chosen for use by many professional men. Recommended by leading A. J. R. First showing in Circleville. The smallest Hearing Aid in the world. Fits in the outer ear without head band. Requires no attention. The use of this small aid will offset the greater part of your difficulty. By actual test you will know what this will mean to you.

taxation committee last week refused to report the bill out for passage.

SCHOOLS AIDED

The house passed the Cramer bill, providing that the 50 per cent of the revenue derived from payment of state inheritance taxes shall go to the school districts in which these taxes originate, instead of to the municipalities and townships. The vote was 97 to 7. The other 50 per cent of this revenue goes to the state. The bill now goes to the senate.

The big biennial appropriation bill, carrying appropriations aggregating $120,211,800.48, was introduced by Rep. L. P. Mooney (R), of Hocking-co, chairman of the house finance committee. Upon his motion, the bill was given second reading and referred to the finance committee.

It appropriates $66,476,523.48 from the state's general revenue fund, to defray the cost of salaries of state employees, maintenance costs of various state departments and for additions and betterments, during the next two years; $33,045, 685 from the state highway maintenance and repair fund, $20,462, 190, from the highway construction fund, all for highway improvement projects, and $227,432 from state rotary funds, for use, principally for building projects, in various state departments.

AWAIT OUTCOME

The appropriation bill is expected to remain in the hands of the finance committee until it is decided whether additional revenue-producing measures will be passed. Unless such measures are forthcoming, it is believed that the committee will further reduce the $66,476,523.48 aggregate appropriation from the general revenue fund so as to balance the state budget. If no further revenue-producing laws are enacted, it is estimated that the payments into the general revenue fund during the coming biennium will total about $58,000,000.

The senate transacted no business Monday night.

No day sessions will be held today, but the senate and house will convene in separate sessions at 8 o'clock tonight.

THREE ARE KILLED

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Two men were killed and a third injured today when an eastbound freight train of 71 cars ran into a washout at Man's Run, one mile east of Creswell, near Columbia, Pa., according to word received at offices of the Pennsylvania railroad here.

The wreck occurred on the Maryland division of the Port Deposit-Columbia branch of the Pennsylvania lines. An engine and tender and seven cars were derailed.

..... Mr. Doolittle conducts a small business in the same room in which he started 30 years ago. He has succeeded in a small way but never advanced nor became a leading dealer in his line of business. He does not understand advertising which is really a business in itself.

It Surely Does
Says Mr. Prosper, "Twenty years ago I opened by place of business in a single store room with a good line of merchandise and at once began advertising in a legitimate way and received results from the start."

..... Mr. Prosper now does business on a large scale. His name is known to great numbers of people. He pays his advertising manager a larger sum than Mr. Doolittle clears in profits for the same period of time. Great mail order houses, chain stores and successful businesses have been started in a small way and built up only through the medium of advertising.

What is the effect of irritation upon the throat? Here are the exact words of a noted authority retained by us to study this question. He writes—

"First, the vocal chords, on account of their delicacy of structure, would be the first tissues to give indication of irritation, evidenced by the huskiness of the smoker's voice, the result of relaxed tension and slower vibration of the vocal chords. The next site of irritation would be the tissues adjacent to the vocal chords comprising the larynx, therefore the general focal point of the irritation would be in the voice box represented externally by the Adam's Apple."

STON TEAMS ARE STRONGER

Kline of Columbus Turns
Back White Six; Braves
Sack Cubs.

NEW YORK, June 16 — Although neither outfit is in danger of winning a pennant, Boston's major league ball clubs gained further recognition today as the outstanding surprises of the current season.

When the Braves started to limp a few weeks ago after setting a hot pace for other national league clubs in the spring, there was a chorus of "I told you so's" from the experts who in pre-season predictions had considered McClellan's men to the second division. But the team has made such a strong comeback since that time that it is only 2 1-2 games behind the third-place Cubs this morning.

The Red Sox, unanimous selection for the cellar berth in the American league, attained a 400 percentage and undisputed possession of fifth place yesterday by beating out the White Sox in the seventh inning, 3 to 2. Bob Kline, the rookie man-mountain, was the winning hurler. Vic Frazier held Boston to four scratch hits but lost the decision because of errors by Jeffries and Cissell.

Old man Willie Sherdel pitched the Braves to their second consecutive triumph over the Cubs, 9 to 3. Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Bruins benched himself in favor of Fouts Blair, who responded to the occasion by going hitless and making an error.

Other National league clubs were idle.

Washington hung up its tenth straight victory by nosing out the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3. The Browns knocked Lloyd Brown off the hill in the seventh but Furpo Garberry galloped to the rescue and held St. Louis hitless from then on.

The Senators failed to gain on the Athletics, who stopped Cleveland, 4 to 1, with Rube Walberg yielding only five hits. After the Mackmen knocked out Hudlin in the sixth Pete Donohue, former pitcher of the New York Giants, went to the mound and was nicked for three hits, including a homer by Todd.

Roy Johnson, Detroit outfielder, beat the Yankees for the second successive, Johnson, with a homer and a single, drove in five runs, the Tigers winning by an 8 to 5 count. Both Whitehill and Ruffing, the starting pitchers, failed to go the route. Lou Gehrig hit his eleventh four-bagger of the year, tying Babe Ruth and Buzz Arlett for third place in the home run derby.

At Country Club.

Karl J. Herrmann won the flag tournament at Pickaway Country Club Sunday when he was allowed two strokes on the third nine holes.

Other prizes winners were, A. B. Chalmers, Chillicothe, second, with one stroke on the first hole of the third round, and Dr. Tracy Owens, Chillicothe, finishing his allotted number of strokes first. He got as far as No. 3 the second round.

The flag tournament is figured thusly; par of the course is added to the player's handicap. When the last stroke of the total is taken, where the ball rests at the completion of its flight, the flag shall be placed. The player going the farthest on his number of strokes is the winner.

Best scores Sunday were turned in by J. H. Evans and J. W. Eshelman Jr., 84 and 85 respectively.

A terrible Coca Cola recreation ball team went down to a humiliating defeat at the hands of the independent Grocers at Utilities field Monday evening, the score being 17-2.

At no time during the lop-sided encounter did the Coca Cola aggregation threaten to even come close to tying the score. The Grocers hopped into a 5-0 lead in the opening frame when the Cokes were unable to hold the ball. Four more were added in the second, two in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the sixth. The Grocers were blanked in the seventh and eighth. The Coca Colas scored their two runs in the second and fourth sessions.

Both teams presented makeshift lineups on the field, the Grocers using Brungs of the Red Men at third base, and George Crum, Red Man manager in the box in the first inning. The Coca Cola lineup failed to include Davis, Dumm and Heeter, who were working.

'ALP' DEFEATS PAT REDMOND

NEW YORK, June 16. — There will be no Pat Redmond victory parade down Fifth Ave. today on account of Cain, the ram of gosh-all-hemlock socks. Signor Primo Garnera landed on his jaw on Ebbets Field last night.

Patrick's Irish colors were lowered in 2 25 of the first round after he had been belted to the floor twice.

On his second visit, our Brave Patrick now not so brave, rolled around in the resin and jolly well remained there.

Perhaps he could have regained his feet. He went down, both times with his heels flying high over his head. They were honest-to-goodness knockdowns, but when Patrick went down the second time, he looked like a man who had decided not to get up again.

Circleville Oils and the Red Men will meet.

Eddie Watson gave only three hits in a great exhibition of mound work.

TEE TONIC for SPRING GOLFERS GENE SARAZEN

It may be appropriate at this time to devote a few words to practice and its benefits. No golfer can get anywhere without practice. There are some who believe that golfers are born, not made. That, of course, is wrong. If you start golf early in life like a good many do, proficiency is attained more readily and more rapidly than by those who start later.

Imitative ability in a youngster is more pronounced than in an adult. I think this is so because a certain cautiousness creeps into a man's personality as he grows older and ruins the freedom of his actions.

Undoubtedly an adult is more active mentally than a boy and this naturally retards his ability to imitate. A youngster, however, is more observant than an older person unless that person has been trained to observe.

When I was a boy I could imitate the swing of all the great golfers. I not only swung like them but adopted some of their mannerisms. However, I was no exception. Pick out any caddy at random and he will do a very good job of imitating your swing or any other to which you direct his attention.

All golfers should try and develop their powers of observation. I know for a fact that few if any of those thousands that compose a gallery at a big tournament can remember with distinctness the swings of the great players they have watched all day or all week.

If there were students of the game, they would be observing methods and manners but, not being students, their minds are curious only about the flight of the ball. Now when I was a tyro, I never watched the ball unless I was at the job of caddying. I watched only the swing from start to finish weaving a mental picture of it by constantly recalling it to mind.

I honestly believe that if a beginner would hire a professional to swing for him, rather than talk to him, he would improve more rapidly. That is, provided he had trained himself to observe.

Practice in many cases does more harm than good because the player is practicing a fault. For instance if a man is bothered by a slice he seeks a cure. If he tries to locate and arrest the trouble himself, he is almost certain to get into deeper water. Instead of curing the slice he is but accentuating it.

Before you practice consult a professional. Get him to set you right and then practice only those things that he has left clean in your mind. Get him to swing for you and try to keep a picture of that swing in your memory.

His Foot "Rides" the Brake... yet he is a reckless motorist!

OIL-SKIMPERS ruin more cars in a minute than reckless drivers who burn up the road. Seven out of every 10 motors that go bad fail because of faulty lubrication, say automobile engineers. Proof that cautious piloting is not enough to keep a car young. You must be liberal with good fresh oil, changed regularly. But for people who are sometimes careless about their oil we have built extra stamina and endurance into Sohio Motor Oil. It's free from harmful wax!

BOSTON TEAMS ARE STRONGER

Bob Kline of Columbus Turns Back White Sox; Braves Sock Cubs.

NEW YORK, June 16 — Although neither outfit is in danger of winning a pennant, Boston's two major league ball clubs gained further recognition today as being the outstanding surprises of the current season.

When the Braves started to slump a few weeks ago after setting a hot pace for other national league clubs in the spring, there was a chorus of "I told you so's" from the experts who in pre-season predictions had considered McKee's men to the second division. But the team has made such a strong comeback since that time that it is only 2 1-2 games behind the third-place Cubs this morning.

The Red Sox, unanimous selection for the cellar berth in the American league, attained a 400 percentage and undisputed possession of fifth place yesterday by losing to the White Sox in the eleventh inning, 3 to 2. Bob Kline, the rookie man-mountain, was the winning hurler. Vic Frazier held Boston to four scratch hits but lost the decision because of errors by Jefferies and Cissell.

Old man Willie Sherdel pitched the Braves to their second consecutive triumph over the Cubs, 9 to 3. Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Bruins benched himself in favor of Fouts Blair, who responded to the occasion by going hitless and making an error.

Other National league clubs were idle.

Washington hung up its tenth straight victory by nosing out the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3. The Browns knocked Lloyd Brown off the hill in the seventh but Firpo Marberry galloped to the rescue and held St. Louis hitless from then on.

The Senators failed to gain on the Athletics, who stopped Cleveland, 4 to 1, with Rube Walberg yielding only five hits. After the Mackmen knocked out Hudlin in the sixth Pete Donohue, former pitcher of the New York Giants, went to the mound and was nicked for three hits, including a homer by Todd.

Roy Johnson, Detroit outfielder, beat the Yankees for the second successive, Johnson, with a homer and a single, drove in five runs, the Tigers winning by an 8 to 5 count. Both Whitehill and Ruffing, the starting pitchers, failed to go the route. Lou Gehrig hit his eleventh four-bagger of the year, tying Babe Ruth and Buzz Arlett for third place in the home run derby.

NAME WINNERS OF GOLF MEET

K. J. Herrmann Cops First Honors in Flag Tournament At Country Club.

Karl J. Herrmann won the flag tournament at Pickaway Country Club Sunday when he was allowed two strokes on the third nine holes.

Other prizes winners were: A. B. Chalmers, Chillicothe, second; with one stroke on the first hole of the third round, and Dr. Tracy Owens, Chillicothe, finishing his allotted number of strokes first. He got as far as No. 5 the second round.

The flag tournament is figured thusly; par of the course is added to the player's handicap. When the last stroke of the total is taken, where the ball rests at the completion of its flight, the flag shall be placed. The player going the farthest on his number of strokes is the winner.

Best scores Sunday were turned in by J. H. Evans and J. W. Eshelman Jr., 84 and 85 respectively.

GROCERS DRUB COCA COLA 9

Score 17 Runs When Defense of Bottlers Blows Up; Watson is Tough.

A terrible Coca Cola recreation ball team went down to a humiliating defeat at the hands of the Independent Grocers at Utilities field Monday evening, the score being 17-2.

At no time during the lop-sided encounter did the Coca Cola aggregation threaten to even come close to tying the score. The Grocers hopped into a 5-0 lead in the opening frame when the Cokes were unable to hold the ball. Four more were added in the second, two in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the sixth. The Grocers were blanked in the seventh and eighth. The Coca Colas scored their two runs in the second and fourth sessions.

Both teams presented makeshift lineups on the field, the Grocers using Brungs of the Red Men at third base, and George Crum Red Man manager in the box in the first inning. The Coca Cola lineup failed to include Davis, Dumm and Heeter, who were working.

This evening the league-leading

OBITUARY
Once again, the Death Angel has visited our vicinity and removed from our midst, a highly respected and influential citizen in the person of Walter Monroe Pleukharp.
He was the son of Edward and Mary Ellen (Myer) Pleukharp and was born on a farm in Benton-twp., Hocking County, Ohio on December 3rd, 1876, and departed this life on June 9th, 1931, aged 54 years, 6 months, and 6 days.
His early life was spent on the farm where he was born, and he attended the public schools of the neighborhood and received a liberal education.
Being incapacitated for hard physical labor, he entered the mercantile business several years since and achieved success in a marked degree. He continued in this business until his life was ended abruptly by the act of a cowardly assassin on the night of June 2nd.
"Walt," as he was familiarly called, will be greatly missed from his accustomed place in his store where he was usually found, ready to extend greetings to callers, and rendering help where help was needed. In short, his life was a life of service, assisting every worthy cause intended for the uplifting and betterment of the community. His life will prove a benediction to those with whom he mingled.
We greatly deplore his passing.

OBITUARY
realizing that his place will be difficult to fill—but like Job—we can only say: "The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord."
The deceased leaves to mourn their loss: one brother, Charles Pleukharp, of South Bloomingville, two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Beery, and Mrs. Alice Wilson, both of Columbus, Ohio; and an aged mother, 94 years of age, living with her daughter, Mrs. Alice Wilson, of Columbus.
Three brothers, Homer A. Pleukharp, George W. Pleukharp, Jacob M. Pleukharp and one sister, Rosa Emma Adams, have preceded the deceased to the Spirit World.
Other relatives are Ray Beery, a nephew, residing in Colorado and five nieces, Mrs. Goldie Engle, Mrs. Nellie Kaufman and Mrs. Virginia Watts, of Columbus and Mrs. Maud Rhenshell of Mt. Pleasant and Miss Gable Pleukharp, of South Bloomingville.
Besides the foregoing relatives, the deceased had a large circle of friends who held him in high esteem.

I hope to see my Pilot face to face,

HOW TO BALANCE TWO COINS BETWEEN FINGERS
Place two coins side by side and cut a match stick the length of the combined diameters of the coins. Hide the match stick in your hand and tell the audience that you will balance the coins, standing one above the other, between your index finger and thumb. Put the coins and the match stick in the same hand, place the coins on top of the stick and you will find it easy to balance them between the fingers with the stick, which is hidden from view, for support.

Place two coins side by side and cut a match stick the length of the combined diameters of the coins. Hide the match stick in your hand and tell the audience that you will balance the coins, standing one above the other, between your index finger and thumb. Put the coins and the match stick in the same hand, place the coins on top of the stick and you will find it easy to balance them between the fingers with the stick, which is hidden from view, for support.

HORNSBY TAKES OWN "MEDICINE"

CHICAGO, June 16.—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs, can take his own medicine.

He had proved that today by benching himself because he was in a batting slump, just as he had previously benched Riggs Stephenson, Charley Grimm, Hack Wilson and Gabby Hartnett, all of whom were back in the game yesterday.

Clarence "Foots" Blair who subbed for his chief didn't do so well, failing to get a hit in four times at bat, and making an error that added two runs to the Braves' winning total as the Cubs lost yesterday, 9-3.

"I haven't been helping the team and any one who isn't helping can't stay in the lineup," said Hornsby who led the league in batting seven years. He had made one hit in seven full games and his batting average had dropped from .343 on June 4 to .298 last Sunday. Against eastern clubs in 13 games he made five hits for an average of .106.

FOUR CONFESS TO SETTING MINE FIRE

Miners, nearly 3,000 strong, who have united themselves in a tri-county strike agitation today were showing more of a semblance of order but yet were regarded as extremely threatening as the continued to enlist new sympathizers.

STILL ON THE UP AND UP

No use talking, this Up and Up business has got us that way. We're trying not to over-do it, but we do want our friends to know that in spite of the calamity howlers, things might be worse.

Our store is still displaying high quality merchandise. It's new, in accord with the change in style. It's backed by manufacturers who have a national reputation for excellent workmanship.

But, best of all, if you need anything, you can satisfy your needs here, and we won't pry the last dollar out of your pocket. If your credit was good a year or so ago, it's still good as far as we're concerned. And we won't say anything about terms you know how liberal they are.

High-quality merchandise: credit, generous terms. Things like these help to make things "on the up and up." They help you, they help us, they help Circleville and Pickaway-co.

It's a good idea: let's all try to see it through.

It was only recently that we told you that we saw an advertisement of a Columbus furniture store which showed a dining room suite exactly like one on our floor, for $14 more than we had it priced. We told you that we would inform you just as soon as we had another one to offer, as, at that time our suite was sold for $125.00. Well, if you want to see a bargain in an eight-piece English oak dining room suite for $118.75 (cash) just drop around to 148 West Main. You'll agree with us, we know, that it's a real buy. It has beauty and strength and would add charm to any dining room.

No use talking, when folks take a look at our rug patterns, that settles it. Just one day last week, a customer dropped in and took a look. They had been looking around but when they saw the values we were offering in Alexander rugs, they couldn't resist and purchased a 9x12 for $33.10.

And when we showed them that rug cushion for $4.75, they took it along with the rug. Of course, we have cheaper rugs, but this one is particularly good. Within a few days, we'll have another shipment on hand. Drop in.

Judge Brown had a "hkker" trial in his court the other day. After charging the jury, he asked, "Is there any question that any one would like to ask before considering the evidence?" Whereupon one of the jurymen asked this one: "A couple of us would like to know if the defendant boiled the malt one or two hours, and how does he keep the yeast out?"

An auto owner told us that he has used our Cactus Auto and Furniture Polish for the past two years and that it is the best that he has ever used. As Andrew Hog Brown says, "That sounds good." Why not try a bottle today?

A customer confessed to us last week that she had furniture in her home that worried her. Whenever her husband or son brought some home to the house, she worried herself sick for fear that her "antique" furniture would not hold them up. Since she has made that confession, we've been wondering how many homes in and around Circleville are in the same boat. Don't let a little thing like that keep you sitting on a tack. Just run in and let us re-furnish your home with modern and substantial "settlin'" room furniture.

Did we do right when we refused to sell a customer an article for about a half-dollar less than our regular price? As was a matter of about $20.00 and the customer wanted it for less money than we'd ask you. Our policy of selling would not permit us to show favoritism to this prospective buyer and sell him for less than we sell to other buyers. So, we lost the sale. We believe that it was the correct thing to do. What do you say? We'd be interested to hear from you.

ested in hearing from the readers of RTT on this subject of merchants having more than one price.

Learning that a furniture man at Leesburg was local distributor of Pyrofax Gas equipment, we wrote him, asking that he give us the experience of his customers as to the cost of operation. He cited one customer that had a tank that lasted 15 weeks, with a family of four. He also said that other tanks lasted even longer than that. "I feel that the average family will use a tank every four months, which would be only three tanks per year, and that is not expensive at all," said Mr. Hook. Since a tank lasted that family of four for 15 weeks, the cost (on present low price of Pyrofax gas) would be but .80 per week—114 per day—.038 per meal. In our opinion, the average family would consume about a gallon of kerosene daily, or about the same cost, but with more inconvenience and odor. We owe Mr. Hook our thanks for the information given us.

(This was overheard at a recent June wedding.)

Usher (to cold dignified lady): "Are you a friend of the groom?"

Lady: "No, indeed. I'm the bride's mother."

We've just received another of those dandy values in living room furniture that we sell at the extremely low price of $79.50 for a 3-piece suite in a Rose and Taupe Jacquard.

Oh, yes, we almost forgot to tell you that we have just placed another one of those new Model K Estate Gas Ranges in a home in this city. As soon as we learn how the lady likes it we'll tell you more about it. We have also received another one for our display. It is beautiful and convenient. But wander down this way and take a look at it. That'll be better than for us to try to describe it here. It takes the walking out of cooking, and keeps the cook cool in more ways than one.

TOURIST Baggage insurance protects personal effects when they are outside your permanent residence. At the golf club, or summer home, when you travel, or when members of your family are away, personal effects need protection against loss by theft, fire, and other dangers. The cost is small. Your Ohio Farmers Agent will tell you about it. Call him.
